Convention 2005 - The Right Direction

A strong future for Security Professionals nationwide!

International President David L. Hickey addresses Convention 2005 with a focus on Service, Education and Organizing.

"Together we are strong and united. SPFPA will achieve the improvements our members truly deserve."

David L. Hickey International President

The International Union, Security, Police and Fire Professionals of America (SPFPA) hosted its Fourteenth Constitutional Convention on May 9th, 10th and 11th, at the Rio All Suites Hotel in Las Vegas, Nevada. The International Union is proud of its tradition of funding airfare and hotel expenses to gain overwhelming attendance and a true democratic voice for SPFPA members.

International President David L. Hickey and the International Executive Board set an aggressive plan for leading security professionals in the "Right Direction" of better service, improved training programs, reliable health and retirement programs for members and their families, aggressive organizing plans, creating new districts and building communications.

It was an exciting and positive event! Many new locals and members were in attendance and stood ready to address important issues. The Delegates faced a full agenda each and every session, and remained committed to provide support and solutions to policies and procedures that will further advance SPFPA and its members!

Each and every member should be proud of the Delegates and the work they accomplished. Together we are strong and united. SPFPA will achieve the improvements our members truly deserve.

Message from the International President
State of the Union Address

Leading Security in

Highlights of President Hickey's State of the Union Address at the Fourteenth Constitutional Convention

It is my privilege and pleasure to tell you that our great Union is strong and growing stronger each day.

We are stronger in numbers because of increased organizing and increased membership. We are stronger in reputation, prestige and influence because we do not back down from challenges.

From a noble heritage we proceed to a brighter future as the country's largest union of security professionals only.

Indeed, we are organized to stay. We have stayed for 57 years, and we continue our forward march on behalf of security officers in the United States, Canada and Puerto Rico.

I want to thank the International Officers, International Representatives, both full and part-time, International office staff, and our professionals, attorneys, CPA's, money managers and pension consultants for their dedicated service. We have operated as a team to serve our members and the cause of our Union.

The life blood of this Union or any other union is organizing. Without it we cannot grow and we cannot meet the competition of numerous security contractors.

I am pleased to advise you that we have organized over 10,000 security officers in the last five years.

A review of the policies of other international unions disclose that the SPFPA provides more service on more subjects on issues for its Local Unions and members, including legal services.

In each of the last five years, the International Union has sponsored and conducted Security Summit Conferences. At these conferences, experts from the security industry, government officials, attorneys and staff members have made presentations on a variety of current subjects. Instruction has been aided by handout material, videos, overhead projectors and PowerPoint.

Our interest and support of education is further demonstrated by the Scholarship Program, which last year alone awarded $6,000 toward scholarships to deserving sons and daughters of SPFPA members. The SPFPA does more for our members than any security union in the country, and I'm proud to be part of it. God bless you and the SPFPA.

“God bless you and the SPFPA”
